HARMONY

UNITY

EQUALITY

A study circles is a dialogue that focuses on racial and ethnic relations sponsored by the Jacksonville Human Rights Commission.

In a study circle 8 – 14 individuals of different racial and ethnic backgrounds meet two hours a week for five weeks to engage in open and honest discussion on racism and race/ethnic relations. Through an honest and respectful exchange, participants are able to learn from diverse experiences, achieve a greater understanding and appreciation of differing cultures, and establish a basis for working together on other community issues.

Join a study circle today (at no cost) and help make Jacksonville the best place in the nation to live, work and raise a family.
