Call to Order

Chairman Williams called the meeting to order at 5:01 p.m. in Training Room 110 of the Ed Ball Building, 214 N. Hogan St. with a moment of silence and welcomed everyone.

Approval of the Minutes

Member Doug Vanderlaan made a motion to accept the summary from the February 2, 2009 meeting. A second was made by Member Swain. The Vote: All in favor; none opposed.

Guest Speaker

Member Michael Hartman went over his presentation on: Basic Concerns Related to PM 2.5 Air Pollution and Air Pollution Related Health Conditions in Jacksonville's Urban Core:

Air Pollution Concerns:

- There are 7 "criteria" air pollutants the City monitors
- There is more known adverse health impacts from PM 2.5 than any other criteria air pollutant, ozone is next in importance.
- Neither PM 2.5 nor ozone is being monitored in the urban core area.
- About 27% of the property in East Jacksonville shows evidence of past chemical contamination which can give rise to contaminated fugitive dust.

- In Member Hartman's opinion, the urban core is closer to a wider diversity of major PM 2.5 air pollution sources (power plants, interstate highways, and ship and rail transporters) than any other area in the city.
- PM 2.5 levels are high when the air is very calm and humid. These conditions tend to not clear out high dusty air and allow dust levels to build up.
- Expansion of Jax port implies more future air emissions from ships and truck traffic, particularly for PM 2.5

Growing Evidence for Health Concerns from PM 2.5:

- Children born in high traffic areas at greater risk of developing asthma (reported Feb. '09)
- A gene (ACSL3) has been found that is associated with prenatal exposure to air pollutants in heavy traffic areas triggering disease onset later (reported Feb. '09)
- A 51 city study of exposure to PM 2.5 and mean life expectancy in each city showed a decrease of 10 ug/M³ in PM 2.5 associated with a increase in life expectancy of about 15% (reported in Jan. '09)
- The racial prevalence of asthma is 7.6% in whites and 9.9% in blacks.
- Florida age adjusted asthma related death rate is 1.0/100,000 but for Duval it is 2.0/100,000. Deaths due to chronic obstructive pulmonary disease are 30% higher in Duval.
- Asthma related hospital discharges are about 2x higher than other areas of the city.
- Detecting early signs for asthma risk is needed to help reduce asthma incidents by targeting the at risk population which seems higher in the urban core than other areas of the city.
- Getting more PM 2.5 data in some area of the urban core, perhaps in the Eastside, prior to operation of the Jax expanded port facilities has been suggested by Dr. Prabhu and the A3 Advocacy Committee on the recent JCCI air pollution study. Perhaps our CPAC should endorse these recommendations.

Handout with the following questions and answers on PM 2.5:

Fine Particles (PM 2.5) Questions and Answers

Fine particulate matter (PM_{2.5}) is an air pollutant that is a concern for people's health when levels in air are high. PM_{2.5} are tiny particles in the air that reduce visibility and cause the air to appear hazy when levels are elevated. Outdoor PM_{2.5} levels are most likely to be elevated on days with little or no wind or air mixing.

What is Particulate Matter 2.5 (PM_{2.5})?

The term fine particles, or particulate matter 2.5 (PM_{2.5}), refers to tiny particles or droplets in the air that are two and one half microns or less in width. Like inches, meters and miles, a micron is a unit of measurement for distance. There are about 25,000 microns in an inch. The widths of the larger particles in the PM_{2.5} size range would be about thirty times smaller than that of a human hair. The smaller particles are so small that several thousand of them could fit on the period at the end of this sentence.

How can PM_{2.5} affect my health?

Particles in the PM_{2.5} size range are able to travel deeply into the respiratory tract, reaching the lungs. Exposure to fine particles can cause short-term health effects such as eye, nose, throat and lung irritation, coughing, sneezing, runny nose and shortness of breath. Exposure to fine particles can also affect lung function and worsen medical conditions such as asthma and heart disease. Scientific studies have linked increases in daily PM_{2.5} exposure with increased respiratory and cardiovascular hospital admissions, emergency department visits and deaths. Studies also suggest that long term exposure to fine particulate matter may be associated with increased rates of chronic bronchitis, reduced lung function and increased mortality from lung cancer and heart disease. People with breathing and heart problems, children and the elderly may be particularly sensitive to PM_{2.5}.

Where does PM_{2.5} come from?

There are outdoor and indoor sources of fine particles. Outside, fine particles primarily come from car, truck, bus and off-road vehicle (e.g., construction equipment, snowmobile, locomotive) exhausts, other operations that involve the burning of fuels such as wood, heating oil or coal and natural sources such as forest and grass fires. Fine particles also form from the reaction of gases or droplets in the atmosphere from sources such as power plants. These chemical reactions can occur miles from the original source of the emissions. In New York State, some of the fine particles measured in the air are carried by wind from out-of-state sources. Because fine particles can be carried long distances from their source, events such as wildfires or volcanic eruptions can raise fine particle concentrations hundreds of miles from the event. PM2.5 is also produced by common indoor activities. Some indoor sources of fine particles are tobacco smoke, cooking (e.g., frying, sautéing, and broiling), burning candles or oil lamps, and operating fireplaces and fuel-burning space heaters (e.g., kerosene heaters).

Is there an air quality standard for PM2.5 in outdoor air?

Yes, the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) established National Ambient Air Quality Standards for PM2.5 in 1997 and revised them in 2006. National Ambient Air Standards are established to be protective of public health. The short-term standard (24-hour or daily average) is 35 micrograms per cubic meter of air ($\mu\text{g}/\text{m}^3$) and the long-term standard (annual average) is 15 $\mu\text{g}/\text{m}^3$. A microgram is a unit of weight. There are a million micrograms in a gram, and a pound is equal to about 450 grams.

How will I know when PM2.5 levels are, or will be, elevated outside?

Outdoor air levels of fine particles increase during periods of stagnant air (very little wind and air mixing), when the particles are not carried away by wind, or when winds bring polluted air into the state from sources outside the state. In general, as the levels of PM2.5 in outdoor air increase, the air appears hazy and visibility is reduced. These conditions are similar in appearance to high humidity or fog. The Jacksonville Environmental Quality Division's Air Quality Branch monitors for PM 2.5 and 6 other criteria pollutants. Except for carbon monoxide and PM 10, none of the other criteria pollutants are monitored in the urban core area by the City. The City reports a daily Air Quality Index to various news media. This index is a sum of the daily ozone and PM 2.5 data for the previous day. Unless one knows what the ozone levels were, citizens will not likely know what the PM 2.5 levels were. The City also maintains a Ambient Air Monitoring WEB page which reports all monitored criteria pollutant results.

Are there ways to reduce my exposure to PM2.5?

When outdoor levels of PM2.5 are elevated, going indoors may reduce your exposure, although some outdoor particles will come indoors. If there are significant indoor sources of PM2.5, levels inside may not be lower than outside. Some ways to reduce exposure are to limit indoor and outdoor activities that produce fine particles (for example, burning candles indoors or open burning outdoors) and avoid strenuous activity in areas where fine particle levels are high.

Member Hartman also mentioned Dr. Phabhu's letter that was sent to the Mayor's Office and he apologized that Dr. Phabhu was not in attendance. The City of Jacksonville's Division Chief of the Environmental Quality Division Vince Seibold Engineer Jeff Winter was in attendance and talked about monitoring. There are 10 sites that do check for pollutants around the city. There is only one site in Arlington that checks for PM 2.5 levels. Members had numerous questions on the location of the monitoring sites along with hot spots not being tested and how the monitoring sites are chosen and what they monitor for. Members would like to see the sites monitored for PM 2.5 especially with the increased traffic and the amount of family members that have asthma from members. This way they would have data on PM 2.5 to see if there is a correlation with the high rate of asthma in the Urban Core. Members are concerned with the Port traffic and the expected increase in truck traffic. Members would like to see the Environmental Quality Division begin the process of monitoring PM 2.5. Member Arnold made a motion to have the UC CPAC write a letter to the Mayor supporting what JCCI has stated about the Urban Core's environment and adding PM 2.5 particle to the City of Jacksonville's air quality monitoring sites. A second was made by Member Swain. The Vote: All in favor; none opposed. Handouts on the irrigation and fertilizer Ordinance were passed out. Vince Seibold can be reached at 630-1212 ext. 3118 or vseibold@coj.net and Jeff Winter can be reached at 630-1212 ext. 3156 or winter@coj.net

Members thanked and applauded Member Hartman for his presentation and for bringing this to the Urban Core CPACs attention.

Staff Reports

Jacksonville Sheriff's Office (JSO) Sgt. Perkins had no report but can be reached at the JSO Zone 1 Sub Station at 924-5361 or JSOzone1@jaxsheriff.org

Mayor's Representative – Carolyn Shehee-Williams had no report but can be reached at 630-1994 or CSHEHEE@coj.net

Mayor's Project New Ground – Darrell Griffin reported on the following:

- The first series of public workshops for Project New Ground will be this week. They have advertised them on the radio, City of Jacksonville website, newspapers and e-mails forwarded by Neighborhood Coordinator Marilyn Fenton-Harmer. Engineers, outreach specialists and attorneys from the Office of General Counsel will be there to answer questions and get access agreements signed. Everyone is invited to attend. If you need an access agreement you can get one on the City of Jacksonville's Web page under Project New Ground or call 630-CITY. The meetings will be:
- Project New Ground will hold Information Fairs on the following dates:

Greg Bruce, The Hester Group, reported that Municipal Code Division, the Department of Health and WorkSource will also be at the Project New Ground Information Fairs. Members had numerous questions and concerns on property values, testing houses that have not been tested and lead levels of the children that have been tested. Darrell Griffin can be reached at 255-8222 or dgriffin@coj.net

Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT) – Milton Locklear was excused and Coordinator Fenton-Harmer reported on the following for him: The signal at 8th Street and Davis Street is designed for the traffic on 8th Street. If you would like 2 or 3 more seconds on non-peak times (Peak times 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.) he will ask the city. Milton Locklear can be reached at 360-5686 or Milton.Locklear@coj.state.fl.us

Planning and Development – Emery Nauden reported on the following exceptions:

- On March 26 there will be a hearing on Exception 09-03 for Three Layers Café selling beer and wine.
- The ARC at 1050 N. Davis Street will be asking for transitional housing with PUD 2009-29. The LUZ hearing will be April 7, 2009.
- Director Brad Thoburn of the Planning Department has stepped down and will now be working for the Florida Department of Transportation.

Planner Nauden can be reached at 630-0258 or enauden@coj.net

Municipal Code Compliance – Zone 1 Officer Sandy Donohue was taking Supervisor Elaine Lancaster place. Members asked questions about condemnations, unsafe structures and vacant property owners. If a bright green sign is on a structure this is for an emergency demolition. Supervisor Lancaster can be reached at 391-3520. Property Safety can be reached at 391-3600 or psafety@coj.net

Department of Health – Jocelyn Turner, Director of Community Relations & Health Promotion, reported on the following:

- On Saturday, March 14 at Raines High School from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. there will be a Free Woman's Health Fair with screenings along with workshops.
- On Saturday, March 28 at Edward Waters College Sports Complex from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. they will be having the 1st Annual Northeast Florida Women's AIDS Conference.
- For information on any coalition call 252 2520.
- The AGAPE Center Network is now open evenings one day a week per location.

Jocelyn Turner can be reached at 253-2037 or Jocelyn_Turner@doh.state.fl.us

Recreation and Community Services – Shorty Robbins reported on the following:

- The Intramural Sports League 3 on 3 for basketball is taking place in 8 parks with approximately 150 teens. They are beginning with learning the rules of the game and playing inner park games. Next week they will get on a bus and go from park to park. This summer they will have flag football.
- City summer jobs to hire for summer camps need to go to WorkSource and fairs at high schools for an opportunity to work a 5-week program or a camp for 8 weeks with 40 hours a week are available for teenagers 16 and up.
- The Jacksonville Journey Community Centers have 5 remaining centers that have been put out again for an RFP. The first package had the 6 centers in it but the Fort Caroline Club Center was withdrawn due to the communities input, and the RFP did not have enough detail.
- On Friday, March 27, 2009 “Get Out There! Festival” will begin. Hanna Park will be free and there will be the oldest running Kite Festival in the country. Parks all over the city will have activities.

Members asked numerous questions on the parks and community centers. Shorty Robbins can be reached at 630-3570 or shortyr@coj.net

Jacksonville Journey – Marilyn Fenton-Harmer gave the 2009 February update:

- The Oversight Committee met with 7 members present and there were two sub-committee meetings
- TEAM UP programs had over 1800 children attend on a daily basis
- Early Learning programs have identified the 25 locations
- Intramural Sports Leagues began operating programs at eight sites
- Twenty-eight organizations were given final approval to operate Summer Camp that will conduct 66 camps for an 8 week, 8 hour a day summer camp.
- Ex-offender contracts were executed
- A map has been created illustrating journey programs and is located on the website
- JSO presented specific data at the JJOC meeting
- Ft. Caroline Club Community Center was removed from the Journey process based on public input.

Information is available on the website at www.coj.net. All Jacksonville Journey Oversight Committee meetings are being held in the Ed Ball Conference room which allows the meetings to be heard over the internet. Chairman's Report – Goals 2009 and Planning

Chairman Williams wanted members to be sure to read Marilyn's report. Members need to fill out the neighborhood registration form to have the boundaries; date, time and location of their meeting and this will go on the City of Jacksonville's web site for groups to visit each other. The discussion began with guest speakers for the year:

- Continue the discussion on environmental concerns such as PM 2.5
- ShAdCo – all the city groups are divided and need to know what the other is doing
- The Urban Core Vision plan is almost complete – would like to have an update on the plan.
- Streets and highways
- JEA – lighting and energy conservation
- Solid Waste
- Schools – funding, teacher retention etc.
- FLUM
- Zoning Code rewrite

Members would like to see guest speakers discuss things that members want to work on. They would also like to be included on the process of the city budget and planning process to improve the quality of life for all citizens. There needs to be a flow of information from all city groups. They appear divided and residents need to know what the other is doing. Due to time this was tabled and will be the focus of the April meeting. Members do not want a guest speaker for April only staff reports and a planning meeting.

Subcommittee Reports

Hospitality – Reported that there was $17.89 in the kitty and $12.68 for a total of $30.57. Thank you to all that donated to keep the refreshments going each month.

Announcements – none

Public Comments – none

Adjournment

The meeting was adjourned at 6:58 p.m.

The next Urban Core CPAC meeting is on Monday, April 6, 2009
at 5 p.m. in the Ed Ball Building, Training Room 110, 214 N. Hogan St.
